20 Qualified For County Races; List Closes Thursday

Deadline Is Midnight June 9 for Entry in Local Election

SIX FOR TREASURER

Candidates Few So Far, However, for County Representatives

With the deadline for entry into the Hempstead county Democratic primary only 48 hours away, 20 candidates had qualified up to Tuesday noon, according to Homer Pigg, secretary of the County Central Committee.

The lists close at midnight Thursday, June 9, just 60 days before the primary election August 9.

About a dozen additional names are expected to appear by that time, according to political rumor.

Six for Treasurer

Six are qualified for the county treasurer's race, as follows: Frank Ward, C. F. Rounton, Charles Reynard and Wash Hutton, all of Hope; Jim Ford Stuart, Ozark; and Edgar B. Black, Washington.

In the sheriff's campaign three have filed thus far: John L. Wilson, S. M. Sutton and J. E. Bearden, all of Hope. Another possible candidate reported likely to file before Thursday night is Jim Dodson, also of Hope, and a former sheriff.

Three candidates appear for circuit clerk: Miss Lillie Middlebrooks, Dale C. Jones and D. B. Thompson, all of Hope. Gray Carrigan, of Washington, present deputy in the circuit clerk's office, is also rumored as a possible candidate.

A two-man race appears probable for the office of county judge, with M. M. Stephens, of Hope, pitted against L. F. Higginson, of Hope. Both had qualified prior to Tuesday noon.

Three for Representative

In the race for representative, where two are to be elected, there was almost no competition on the basis of present filing. Only three have qualified thus far: A. C. Holt, of Tokio; L. F. Monroe and I. L. Pilkinton, both of Washington. Ernest Steed and Emory Thompson, two candidates in the primary of 1930, are reported however considering making the race again this time.

Arthur C. Anderson, of Spring Hill, present county clerk seeking a second term, has qualified and appears to be unopposed; as are John Ridgill, of Hope, county tax assessor; and Millard Alford, of Gordon, prosecuting attorney.

Tents Are Given Flood Sufferers

Many in Oklahoma Put Under Canvas by Guardsmen

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—National guardsmen erected a city of tents Monday to house hundreds of Oklahoma City's flood refugees while heavy rains overnight led the waterway of the North Canadian river, which caused much of last week's devastation.

No danger of recurrent flood conditions was immediately apparent here, however. Last week's torrent took seven lives here and two others in the Shawnee-Seminole area.

With the arrival of 148 tents, 1200 cots and 2400 blankets from Fort Sill, arrangements were made for many of the city's 796 destitute families to begin beating back in the canvas camp in the southwestern part of town.

Declaring the situation in hand here, Albert Evans of St. Louis, Red Cross official, planned to return to his headquarters Monday night.

Search for two missing was added to an attempt to obtain the remaining two-thirds of a proposed $30,000 fund for flood sufferers here.

Bonus Army Ties Up Trains In Cleveland

Refused free transportation to Pittsburgh on their journey to Washington, D. C., 900 "bonus marchers" descended on the Pennsylvania railroad yards at Cleveland, Ohio, tied up switch engines and freight traffic and detained a passenger train carrying U. S. mail for almost an hour. When the war veterans scrambled aboard locomotives, railway officials halted all freight movements. Here you see a crowd of the veterans with one of the seized locomotives. Estimates of the "bonus army" stranded in Cleveland ran as high as 2000, about half of them having arrived by freight cars from Chicago, Detroit and Toledo while the remainder were recruited in Cleveland and northern Ohio cities by C. B. Cowan, Communist leader.

Takes Car Without Noticing Boy, His Cries Chase Thief

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The cries of a five year old boy, accidentally kidnapped when a thief took an automobile, caused the thief to abandon the car and child Monday after driving two blocks.

The child, John Herndon Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, was sleeping on the rear seat when his mother parked the car, and entered a downtown building. She returned thirty minutes later to find the car and child had disappeared.

Two hours later police found the car and child two blocks from where the car had been parked. From the child's story officers gathered that his screams had frightened the thief.

Believe Fort Smith Check Ring Broken

Hold Gene Harback, Printer, for Making Forms; Vouchers Passed

FORT SMITH.—Arrest of Gene Harback, football star at Fort Smith High School 10 years ago, by Constable Jack Pace and his deputy, Otto Kuykendall, Monday is believed by officers to have broken a large check-forging ring, plans for which were made in the Sebastian county jail here.

Harback, a printer, was said to have had in his possession a large quantity of blank forms for cashier's checks. The forms included 50 cashier's checks, made on "The Tri-State Bank and Trust Company, New York. Harback admitted, Pace said, that he had printed the forms for a man whose name he did not know. Pace said Harback also admitted having printed 500 forged cashier's checks, on which the name of the First National bank of Fort Smith was placed, and 100 checks with the name of the "Merchants National bank of Muskogee." No bank of the latter name exists.

Pace said he had information that S. J. Nowbert, now held in the county jail awaiting trial on charges of forgery and grand larceny, was the one who planned the forgeries. Pace traced the distribution of the forged cashier's checks, approximately 18 of which have been received in Fort Smith during the last three weeks, to two short-time prisoners in the county jail who were released about three weeks ago.

The checks received in Fort Smith have had the forged signature of A. N. Seward, president of the First National bank of Fort Smith, coming from Little Rock, Oklahoma City, and other cities as far west as the Texas Panhandle. The checks have been from $10 to $25. None of the "Merchants National bank" checks of Muskogee has been received in Fort Smith.

"We have information," Pace said, "that Nowbert wrote out the forms for the forged checks in the county jail and gave these to two short-term prisoners, before they were released." Charges of accessory to forgery will be filed against Harback and Nowbert. Arrests of two men who are alleged to be passing the forged checks are expected sometime this week, Pace said.

ASHDOWN, Ark.—Despite efforts of Will Brown, river barge watchman, to save him, Myrtle Smith, 15, negro, drowned while swimming Sunday in Little river, 10 miles north of here.

Detroit Officers Repulse Rioters

Radicals Lead Futile Demonstration Against Auto Body Plant

DETROIT.—(AP)—Fifty mounted police and patrolmen battled a crowd of 3,000 demonstrators Monday at the gates of the Briggs Manufacturing Company plant. The mob was turned back in a brief but bitter struggle in which several were injured slightly. A woman and five men were arrested.

'Armed with riot clubs and tear gas bombs, the police fought back the demonstrators when they attempted to rush the gates of the plant. The rioting followed a meeting called by John Schmieles, one time Communist candidate for mayor of Detroit, in which unemployment relief and an increase in wages for workers at the plant were demanded. The Briggs company makes automobile bodies.

As the demonstrators rushed the gates, patrolmen dashed from inside the plant, and a mounted detail galloped up from a side street. Tear bombs were thrown into the crowd. The mob was driven from the gates and into side streets. The demonstrators hurled stones and bricks and swung their fists. Police wielded riot clubs.

A patrolman and a demonstrator were taken to hospitals for treatment of cuts and bruises. Several others, including four patrolmen, were given first aid at a nearby police station. The demonstrators dispersed within an hour after the riot.

Mrs. Jessie Nagatza, arrested as one of the leaders of the mob, was held for investigation. Her husband, Joseph, and Joseph Mabo, Max Taser, Roland Galin and Roy Bennieus also were held for questioning. Bennieus was treated at a hospital for head injuries.

Police said that Albert E. Goetz, a leader of the Communist party in Detroit, was at the head of the main detachment which stormed the company gates.

It is likely that Arkadelphia will submit a proposition to the commission, which will present it to the Executive Board of the convention, along with its own propositions, within two weeks. Speakers said it would be necessary for Arkadelphia to provide a science building and a library building that will meet the requirements of the North Central Association, the standardizing agency, to guarantee funds with which to pay certain debts and relieve the college of other obligations.

Besides Dr. Winburn those who spoke were Dave McMillan, Dr. W. S. Johnson, President C. D. Johnson of the college, J. G. Lile and Dr. A. C. Miller. Dr. Miller, presiding elder of the Arkadelphia District of the Methodist church, who lives at Little Rock, said that he favored Arkadelphia as the continued site of Ouachita, provided the institution can be financed here.

Friends said Patterson, who could not swim, waded into the water above his head and went down.

Garner Measure Gets Consideration of Congress Group

Banking Group Approves Loan for Destitute State Relief

MORE WHEAT GIVEN

Mayors Petition for Bond Issue for Relief of Cities and Towns

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Congress progressed Tuesday in handling relief legislation with the House of Representatives verging on a showdown on the Garner program.

That section of the Senate Democratic bill allowing 300 million dollars for loans to states to meet destitution was approved by the Senate Banking Committee.

Whether to accept the drastic procedure sought by House Democrats to let through the two billion dollar Garner relief program was a question debated in the House Tuesday morning.

If this fails the bill may be laid wide open for amendment, but if it succeeds the administration will lack a chance to seek a substitute for the Hoover plan.

A committee of mayors Tuesday petitioned for a five billion dollar bond issue to help employment and stricken cities.

The House agriculture committee approved the distribution of 40 million more bushels of wheat and a half million bales of farm board cotton for the needy.

Arkadelphia Hopes To Retain College

Proposed Removal of Ouachita to Little Rock Under Discussion

ARKADELPHIA.—The status of Ouachita College was discussed Sunday night at the First Baptist church here. The pastor, Dr. H. L. Winburn, said the Baptist Education Commission was composed of sincere men who have the future of church education at heart, but that he believed the proposition given it by Little Rock real estate men was inadequate to assure the life of Ouachita College, much less make of it the great school desired.

He said that if the commission's propositions were not accepted by the Executive Board of the convention, the safety of the college in large part would depend on the citizens of Arkadelphia.

It is likely that Arkadelphia will submit a proposition to the commission, which will present it to the Executive Board of the convention, along with its own propositions, within two weeks. Speakers said it would be necessary for Arkadelphia to provide a science building and a library building that will meet the requirements of the North Central Association, the standardizing agency, to guarantee funds with which to pay certain debts and relieve the college of other obligations.

Randolph County Planter Wounded

E. Dalton Shot, Perhaps Seriously, by Assailant Hidden in Barn

POCAHONTAS.—E. Dalton, aged 66, one of the best known planters of this section, was shot and wounded perhaps seriously about 5:30 Monday afternoon by an unidentified masked assailant. The bullet from a small caliber pistol struck him in the left side, below the heart, but physicians said that the bullet struck a rib and was deflected. However, it was not determined whether the lung was punctured.

Dr. Dalton was at his home Monday night, but will be transferred to a hospital at Jonesboro Tuesday morning. He was suffering from shock. He lost little blood, however.

Mr. Dalton had gone to a barn on his plantation, about a quarter-mile from his home, to feed stock. As he entered the barn, the intruder fired. It was two hours later when the wounded man was found by an employee named Taylor.

Officers were summoned immediately, but were unable to pick up a trail. Sheriff Brooks sent to Newport for bloodhounds which were expected late Monday night. No motive for the attack was advanced.

Mr. Dalton owns several thousand acres of farm land. He served in the House of the Arkansas legislature in 1927. He was chairman of the Board of Directors of the Defunct Randolph State bank.

Women's Alleged Attackers Sought

Two Victims of Crime Near Swift; Protector Is Wounded

NEWPORT.—An exhaustive search is being made by Sheriff Gray, Albright and his deputies, assisted by Sheriff W. E. Archer of Lawrence county, for three young men who are reported to have criminally assaulted two young women Sunday night and shot J. H. Robirds, aged about 70, as he attempted to protect his daughter-in-law and granddaughter.

Mr. Robirds, who resides three miles west of Swift, said Troy and Roy Dunn and an unidentified young man, all of near Alicia, went to his home at 11 o'clock Sunday night. He admitted them and was urged by the men to partake of some whiskey they had. He refused and was then ordered by the men to go out and buy a gallon of liquor for them. He also refused this request, whereupon, he said, one of the men drew a pistol and ordered him to raise his hands.

While he was kept at the point of the gun, the men attacked the women, he said. The men kept Mr. Robirds covered for three hours, when in an effort to protect the women, he was shot, the bullet entering his left cheek and ranging downward in the left side of his body.

According to the injured man, he was placed in a wagon in which the woman also were forced to ride. The women jumped from the wagon and escaped before they had traveled far, and the young men threw Mr. Robirds from the wagon. He was found by neighbors and was in a serious condition from loss of blood. Physicians have been unable to locate the bullet. The search then began by the officers for the three young men who fled from the Simmons home at their approach.

There is much feeling in the Swift community against the trio. Mr. Robirds' injury is serious and may result fatally.

Strange Aspect of the Tax Bill

THE new tax bill is going to make things tough for gangsters. It gives the government the right to slap a 100 per cent tax on any profits that come from illegal activity, and hereafter the bootlegger or racketeer who marches in to pay his income tax is going to get an unpleasant surprise.
 All of this, probably, comes under the heading of good news. We haven't had such distinguished success in our war on gangsters that we can afford to overlook any new law that will enable us to clamp down on them a little more effectively.

And yet, when you stop to think about it, the whole business is a little bit funny.
 It constitutes, probably, the most roundabout way yet devised for sneaking up on criminals.

Here, in effect, is what we tell the gangster: "Go ahead and put on your rackets if you like. Bootlegging, gambling, murder—try anything you please, for the chances are about 50 to 1 that we shan't be able to catch you, or to punish you if we do catch you."

But watch out for the money you make. If you come in to pay a tax on it, as the law provides, we'll take it all away from you. And if you don't come in at all, and we find out about it, we're apt to send you to prison for a few years.
 To be sure, this roundabout method finally landed no less a man than Al Capone in the jug; and half a loaf, in an affair of this kind, can be a whole lot better than no bread at all. But it's a funny system, and if our famous American sense of humor were working properly we'd be laughing at ourselves night and day.

Which, in turn, may mean that we are a lot more in earnest about punishing crimes against money than we are about punishing crimes against life or public decency.

What's Wrong With the World?

COLONEL HUGH L. COOPER, president of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, suggests the calling of a world conference "to find out what's wrong with the world."

"It is difficult," he says, "for me to see how a disarmament conference for the limitation of land and naval forces, sitting by one lakeside; another conference on reparations, sitting somewhere else; and a conference on world banking, another on the gold standard and another on tariffs—all at different times and places—can produce a lasting remedy for a very sick world. We all know that these problems are so interdependent that they cannot possibly be solved sensibly."

There is sound sense in the idea that all our problems tie in together, and that one cannot be solved unless the others are considered with it.

But would a world conference really do the job? Try to imagine the thing, and you get a picture of a lot of delegates struggling with a lot of words and getting hopelessly tangled in the mesh of their own ideas. The world does not appraise the conference idea these days quite as highly as once it did.

Bribery

FUNNY things get into the papers occasionally.
 The other day Dr. Charles W. Pipkin of Columbia university, New York, speaking at the conference on state reorganization on Petit Jean mountain, declared that the lamentable state of public affairs in Arkansas was largely due to the fact that for twenty years the ministers, teachers and business men of the state have been engaged in bribing and cajoling our legislators.

Now comes an indignant reader of the Arkansas Gazette, writing from Fort Smith, with a demand that the learned doctor place any information of such bribery that he may possess before the Pulaski county grand jury, or stand forever disgraced as a liar and cheap sensationalist.

For the good of Arkansas let it be hoped that Dr. Pipkin's point was not so widely missed by many residents of the state.

For our public ills here and throughout the country are not in large measure attributable to the kind of bribery in which grand juries are interested. We have some public officials who will sell out for money, but a great many more to whom the offer of a cash bribe would be an insult but who see nothing reprehensible in that more subtle form of bribery in which votes are the consideration which they receive in exchange for the sacrifice of their convictions and of the general welfare.

When Dr. Pipkin spoke of the bribing of legislators by ministers, teachers and business men he referred to their use of political pressure to compel weak-kneed public officials to expenditures of public funds on extensions of public activity which are the explanation of an excessive state debt and burdensome taxation.—Blytheville Courier News.

Sutton

We are having nice weather and the crops are looking good. Believe Sunday was the hottest day we have had this summer.

Louise Bright was a Saturday night guest of Dorothy Galloway and Misses Lucille Galloway and Emma Hoyer were guests of Edna Lambert Saturday night and Sunday.

Bro. White preached a good sermon at Sutton Sunday which seemed to have been enjoyed by every one. Next Sunday night will be our League night. We'll be glad to have all the young people that can come to be there.

Misses Lena and Muriel Erwin, Margaret and Marion Erwin were weekend guests of Lolla Woodell.
 Dorothy Galloway who has been sick for the past few days was not doing so well Sunday. We hope she will soon be able to be up again.

The picnic that was given at Galloway Springs Saturday was enjoyed by all.
 There will be singing at new Lily Saturday night, two miles west of Sutton.

That's No Vacation

WORCESTER, Mass.—In suing his wife for divorce, Frank H. C. Coppus, 53, came in for a rigid cross-examination. He admitted having taken his 26-year-old private secretary, a pretty girl, on vacation trips to New York, Cuba and elsewhere. When asked why he hadn't taken his wife along, he replied: "That, sir, would not have been a vacation."

Single Log Home

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, Cal.—One of the strangest homes in California is a log cabin made out of a single log. The home was hollowed out of the log by Hale Tharp, in 1858, and the tree trunk is 24 feet in diameter at the butt. The hollowed-out section extends back into the sequoia log for 56 feet.

Camera Doesn't Lie

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Municipal Judge Clifton Cameron was confronted with some evidence that couldn't lie if it wanted. Mrs. Eloise Walton was the one who produced it. She was one of 12 persons arrested and hauled into court for disregarding a traffic stop sign. When asked if she pleaded guilty, she said no. "And why?" asked the prosecutor. "Because of these," she replied—and produced two photos which showed that the sign was so bent and twisted as to be illegible. She and the other defendants were freed.

Steady Customer

HARRISBURG, Pa.—They sort of hated to see Howard C. Gordon, 36, leave the hospital, did the attendants. He had been such a good customer that everyone was acquainted with him. He was recently retrained by his home after undergoing his 32nd operation. He was injured in an automobile accident a few years ago and most of the operations were performed on his right leg, which had been broken twice.

Longest Taxi Trip

TWN FALLS, Idaho.—Perhaps Roy Biegeck, of Chicago, was attempting to set a new record, but his attempt must have been costly. He recently passed through here on his way from Chicago to Portland, Ore., by taxicab. Two drivers, alternating every 100 miles, were driving the cab. No stops were made except for meals and gasoline.

Woman Pays

FORT WORTH, Texas.—The marriage license clerk overheard a funny conversation between a couple applying for a license. The bride-to-be paid the license fee of $2. "I'll give you the $2 later, honey," the prospective groom said. "Huh! That's more than you'll earn the rest of your life," she snorted.

A naturalist says that many fish can travel faster than an express train. And, he forgot to add, many others think they can.

Quizzed in Probe of Curtis' Hoax

Though held on a liquor charge, Samuel Trusdale (above) was questioned by federal officers at Philadelphia on the possibility that he was the "Sam" mentioned in John H. Curtis' confession of the Lindbergh hoax. Curtis was reported to have admitted that while other persons in his stories of kidnapping "negotiations" were products of his imagination, that "Sam" was real.

Do You Remember?

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Prof. Riley and wife, of El Dorado, have been renewing old acquaintances in this city this week, and visiting his father, W. H. Riley, one of Hempstead county's best known farmers.
 Wright Tharp, who has been attending the Grandview Collegiate Institute of Grandview, Texas, returned home Tuesday.
 Miss Edna Wingfield attended the Music Festival at Little Rock this week.

TEN YEARS AGO

John Nutt, J. N. Kenney and C. C. Westerman were Sunday visitors to Arkadelphia.
 Some of the boys of the vacation set gave an informal dance Friday evening at the home of Miss Frances Sullivan. The guests including Misses Frances Bourne, Margaret McRae, Mary Hortense McCorkle, Marjorie Walker, Hayline Hay, Elizabeth Stuart, Maxine Kelly, Lonia Sanders, Shyl Watson, Wybil Wimberly, Frances Arnold, Mary Haynes, Snow McLarty, Clyde Carson, Evan Wray, Calvin and Lawrence Marshall, J. T. Bell, Jr., Jo and Chas. Lowthorp, Charles Bride-well, David Finley, Syd McMath, Clyde Jones, Robert Stell, Presley and Dick Hill.

A smart but informal home wedding took place Saturday evening at 7:45 o'clock, at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Kennedy, when their daughter, Miss Edna, became the bride of Mr. Otto Sullivan.

Paul Briant and Dr. Garner spent this morning fishing at Red Lake, and report a fine catch of bream.

Even Hit Matches

READING, Pa.—Hard times have hit the Berks county courthouse after half a century of prosperity. The county commissioners have ordered that no more matches shall be purchased by the county for free distribution to visitors at the courthouse.

Held for Lindy Extortion Note

Accused of attempting to extort $35,000 from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh for information he claimed to possess of the kidnappers of Baby Lindbergh, John C. Sonne, 22, above, who says his home is in Greensburg, Pa., was arrested at Nebraska City, Neb. He told federal men that he was forced to write the alleged extortion letter by two men he met in What! No Oysters?

LOS ANGELES.—D'ja ever eat oysters for breakfast? Well, according to Mrs. Harry F. Becker, her husband insisted on them one morning and she had to hurry out and get them. After she returned with the oysters he demanded a cup. Because there was no cup in the house he hit her, she charged in a divorce suit here. Such an appetite and actions on the part of her husband caused Superior Judge Joseph L. Call to grant the divorce.

A girl may wear a golf suit when she can't play golf, a riding habit when she can't ride and a swimming suit when she can't swim, but when she puts on a wedding gown she means business.

Peace At Last

MADUSA, Madras.—From now until 1999 this old world will be the most peaceful place in the universe, according to predictions of Palani Swamikal, Indian seer who is attracting large crowds here. He says "the world is to enjoy peace and happiness for the next 67 years. He would not say what would happen in 1999, however.

Alfalfa as Ingredient for Cheese Is Successful

MADISON, Wis.—The lowly alfalfa plant has risen from its place as a cattle fodder to the position of an ingredient in cheese through the ingenuity of a Manitowish cheese maker. It was revealed today by the state Department of Agriculture and Markets.
 In response to requests from Borden for a new kind of fancy cheese, the manufacturer made up a fine batch of cheddar into which he sprinkled fresh green alfalfa leaves. The result is a green and gold delicacy combining the flavor of ripe cheddar with that of alfalfa and sage seasoning. Boston ordered five carloads.

The slight misdeed of yesterday, why should it mar today? The thing he said, the thing you did, have long since passed away; for yesterday was but a trial; today you will succeed, And from mistakes of yesterday will come some noble deed. Forgive yourself for thoughtlessness; do not condemn the past, For it is gone with its mistakes; their memory cannot last; Forget the failures and misdeeds, from such experience rise; Why should you let your head be bowed? Lift up your heart and eyes.—Selected.

"THE LEADING DEPARTMENT STORE"

PRESCOTT

NASHVILLE

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By Santa Con
BROOKMAN

former sharp, efficient and door-opening white shirted man.
"Oh, please, Sarah, don't! Don't!
Don't!"

"Just the same, you shouldn't have said that," pressed the fathers about you, married and all. My little Cherry! I couldn't believe it!
"No, no, again," the girl said
proudly. "Wait till you know Dad,
then you'll understand."

THE older woman was sitting in the big overstuffed chair. Cherry was perched on the arm of the chair suddenly slipped to her knees directly in front of Sarah.

"Dan's—wonderful!" the girl said,
raising starry eyes. "I'd do it again
for him!"

"You mean you're really happy?"
"Happier than I've ever been in my life!"

Old Sarah slipped a hand over the girl's. "May the Lord take care of you and help you to keep that happiness," she murmured. "Maybe if you feel that way it's for the best."

"Of course, it is!" Cherry insisted.
"And really, Sarah, there wasn't any other way!"

For Sarah's benefit she reviewed the scene of her last evening at home. With "oh's" and "ah's" and frequent nodding of her head Sarah listened to the story. Cherry described the marriage and the celebration with Dan's friends.

Then it was Sarah's turn to take up the narrative. "Such a night!"
she began. "I hope I'll not live through another one! All that we knew was that you'd gone and your mother was crying her eyes out in her room and your father downstairs pacing back and forth like a wild man. Half the night it went on and not a word of sleep did I get! And feeling guilty as I did for knowing where you'd been off to in the afternoon, I was afraid to speak and afraid not to. Oh, it was terrible! Then in the morning we saw the papers and read how you'd been married. I guess your father took on even worse than he did the night before. He didn't leave the house until almost noon. We could hear their voices—his and your mother's—but it was your father that did most of the talking. Finally he left and your mother said she had a headache and was not to be disturbed. She stayed in her room all day, but she had me bring the newspapers and it was easy to tell from the way her eyes were swollen and the red lines around 'em that it wasn't headache."

"I'm sorry," Cherry said slowly.
"I didn't know she'd feel so badly."
"What? Not feel badly? With her daughter that seems almost a baby still run off and marry!
Someone else doesn't even know?
Not feel badly? Oh, Cherry!"

"Would she let me come to see her?" the girl asked hesitantly.
Sarah shook her head. "That's the worst part," she admitted. "It's
And with a gallant bow, Mr. Lewis walked through the crowd that had gathered about him on the steps leading to the Senate chamber, and moved serenely through the Senate doors.

For 15 minutes the men had shouted
at the Illinois senator, criticizing him
for a recent speech in which he said it wrong for the veterans to seek to intimidate Congress into voting for the immediate cash payment of their adjusted certificates. For 15 minutes he had replied in polite, soft spoken phrases.

The veterans raised their voices, the crowd grew larger. Half a dozen senators led by F. C. Walcott, Republican, Connecticut, passed through the corridors, stopped to watch the scene.
"We're from Illinois and we voted for you," the spokesman of the crowd shouted at Mr. Lewis.

"That is very pleasant, indeed, or rather, it was, until you came here
to hippodrome a serious question.
You now want to intimidate or seduce
the weak members of Congress. Why, gentlemen, you're losing your own

your father that's so set against it.
That's why your mother sent me."
"Mother sent you?"

"Of course. Late yesterday afternoon she rang and said I was to go out of the house somewhere and telephone the newspaper office and see if I could find out where you were. Well, I did it, and spoke girl with a nice polite voice said you was at the Bismark hotel. So when I told your mother she said I was to get you things packed and send them to you."

"Oh, Sarah!"

"Well, I thought before I did that it would be better to come down and talk to you and see how everything was. Your mother said yes, that's what I should do, but I mustn't let any of the others know about it. And none of 'em does know! So you tell me, Miss Cherry, what to pack. I think your mother liked the idea of my coming to see you so I could tell her how you was
and if you want to send her a note I'll be glad to take it. But I wouldn't write letters because maybe your father wouldn't like that."

CHERRY was on her feet. "Of course I'll write," she said.
"Sarah, you're an old darling. You'll come to see me often, won't you?"

"Well, I'll try to. We'll have to be careful, though. It wouldn't do for your father to find out."

Half an hour later Sarah O'Fallon departed. Stowed away in her purse was the letter Cherry had written to her mother. The trunk with Cherry's clothing, Sarah promised, would be delivered in the afternoon.

"Don't fret," she told the girl as she hesitated with one hand on the doorknob. "If you're sure you've got the right boy things'll come out right! Young folks have to go their own way, I guess. You can let me know if you move and I'll come when I can."

Cherry went down the hall with her. She squeezed Sarah's hand tightly as the door of the elevator car slid open.

"Goodbye, Darling."
"Goodbye."

Back in her room the girl glanced at her wrist watch. Almost noon.
One thought and one only was in Cherry's mind. With sudden energy Cherry hurried to the clothes closet and dragged out the big box from Stanley's. A minute more and she was pulling on her hat and coat.

She left the hotel and walked to the department store with the box under her arm. Miss Lacey was in the French room, waiting on another customer. Cherry lingered until she had finished. Then she explained that she had changed her mind about the purchases.

Miss Lacey's trim dark brows lifted slightly. If Cherry had not been so preoccupied she would certainly have become uncomfortable under that gaze.

"You mean they're unsatisfactory?" a saleswoman asked.

"No, I—I've decided. I don't want them. It's all right, isn't it? They haven't been touched."

Miss Lacey opened the box and shook out the dresses. Regretfully she admitted that it would be all right. Was there anything else she could show Mrs. Phillips? Something she'd like in exchange?

Cherry said no, there was nothing else. And now that the things had been returned there wouldn't be any bill would there?

Miss Lacey wrote something on a slip of paper. "Just present this at the credit desk," she told Cherry. "They'll give you a receipt."

WITH the carboned receipt showing that merchandise worth $93.70 had been returned and credited to her account Cherry left the store. She discovered that the sun was shining and the faint breeze held the fragrance of spring. Surely the sky had never seemed bluer. A group of girls passed her, laughing.
Cherry paused before a florist's window and gazed in admiration at huge baskets of blue and white hyacinths. She could almost breathe their sweetness.

Spring! Of course it was spring, the season when all the world took on freshness and new life. This was a sunny day in mid-April and Cherry was a bride with the finest,
dearest young husband in the world.
She had just corrected a mistake
that for a short time had threatened their happiness. Everything was all right now. She would not even have to tell Dan about the charge account since the bill had been removed.

At a drug store counter she lunched on a sandwich and malted milk and then hurried back to the hotel. It had been agreed between them that Dan was not to telephone her at noon because Cherry expected to spend the day hunting for an apartment.

She did not go out, however, because she was anxious to be on hand when the trunk was delivered.
Cherry would take a chance with that trunk. It came about 4 o'clock.
By the time Dan arrived she had unpacked everything and was waiting, fresh and radiant in a deep green frock with touches of daffodil yellow that he said made her exactly like the flower.

"Only lovelier," he told her.
"Lovelier because—well, you're you!"

They had dinner again at Schroeder's, exchanging news of the day over the appetizing hot food. Their plates were taken away to be replaced by dessert. Abruptly Dan looked up.

It was one of those moments that seem utterly casual when, looking backward, events reshaping entire lives may be seen to have their beginning.

Dan said, "Guess I forgot to tell you. Max Pearson's coming back tomorrow."

"You mean they're unsatisfac-
tory?" a saleswoman asked.

Visitors in National Balloon Race

Landing near Hatton, Sask., approximately 900 miles from its starting point at Omaha, Neb., the U. S. army's No. 2 balloon captured first place in the national balloon race. Here you see its victorious crew, Lieutenant Wilfred J. Paul (left), the pilot, and Sergeant J. H. Bishop (right), his aide. Their bag was the last of the six entries to descend. Their victory entitles them to the Litchfield trophy and to a place on the international Bennett race team.

And here on the steps of the White House are Irene, 11, Bernice, 13, and Clifford Feagan, 10, after Mr. Hoover had promised to use his "good offices" in their behalf. Ben-Hur, Redone in Sound, at Saenger

Great Screen Spectacle Is Revived for Showing
Thursday and Friday

Once in a lifetime, in every field of creative art, a work is produced which not only creates a furor in its own time, but lives through the ages. Such a work is the immortal film classic,
"Ben-Hur," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has brought back to the screen augmented with sound, and which will be shown Thursday and Friday at the Saenger Theatre.

It is generally admitted that no picture made either before or after "Ben-Hur" has equaled it in spectacular scope, entailing a cost of four million dollars, a cast of no less than 150,000 persons and scenes ranging from the sensational sea battle of 100 Roman and pirate ships to the celebrated chariot race filmed in a reproduction of the Circus Maximus extending 1,500 feet along the sides of the race course and towering 150 feet above it.

Hear As Well As See
In the reissued version filmgoers will hear the thundering hoofbeats as the horses race around the course, the crack of the whip as each driver lashes
his steed to greater effort, the curses, shouts and cheers of the thousands of onlookers. In the thrilling sea battle they will hear the crash as the ships ram each other, the clash of the spears
and shields, the moans of the wounded, the cries of the slaves chained in the hold. Sound effects are similarly used to advantage throughout the entire picture doubling the spectacle of the various episodes and increasing the sense of realism.

Woman Runs Alaska's Only Radio Station

PORTLAND, Ore.—(P)—Manager of Alaska's only broadcasting plant Mrs.
James Britton of Ketchikan had to come to Portland to buy equipment for a new radio station.

KGBU, her old station at Ketchikan was destroyed by fire while she and her staff were out to lunch.
Mrs. Britton had just finished installing a new frequency control and was away from the station just a short time when it burned. The fire was of incendiary origin, she said.

Gardens Provide Work For Colorado Jobless

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—(P)—Planting of emergency gardens to provide work for unemployed and vegetables
for the needy has been started in several parts of Colorado.

The Colorado Agricultural college extension service has co-operated with industrial concerns which have made plans for such gardens to aid jobless men.

A bulletin from the Akron department of health reads: Mrs. H. is released from quarantine, and is granted permission to start work on milk bottles, after being boiled 30 minutes.
You might say she was still in hot water.

Now They Can Bark About Their Operation

Human beings don't have a corner on all the so-called "human" diseases. Dogs and cats, too, are beset by most of the same ills, and here you see some of them being treated in a New York hospital for animals that is so complete that almost any kind of operation could be performed in it. The Great Dane, at left, was found upon examination to have heart trouble. The dog, upper center, with bandaged head, had been operated upon for cancer of the eye. The black and white pointer next to him had just passed a physical examination with flying colors. The canine inmate in the middle was being given an X-ray treatment, and the cat, below, was basking in the healthy-giving light of a violet ray lamp. That German shepherd dog at the right had a severe infection, and members of the hospital staff are shown putting him back on the road to health.
